

COACHING

DEVELOPMENT PLAN FOR STRATEGIC SELF-AWARENESS

Report for: Candidate Sample

ID: HE376017

Date: 1.05.2017

Introduction

The Coaching Report is designed to guide you through the development planning process. The report will help you bring together the results from the Leadership Forecast Reports (and any other assessment data you may have) and integrate those results into a comprehensive development plan. You can make effective use of this report on your own or in conjunction with a more formal coaching process. The report includes the following components:

- Process Checklist designed to walk you through building a development plan
- Development Model that provides guidance for integrating assessment data
- Job Analysis Worksheet to better understand the target job for your development effort
- Multi-rater Worksheet to indicate 360 results or behavioral examples
- Forecast Summary that overviews the results of your Leadership Forecast Reports
- Assessment Worksheet to summarize results of your Leadership Forecast Reports
- Data Integration Worksheet to organize all results into an overall performance snapshot
- Development Planning Form to record your development information (Appendix A)

Process Checklist

The process checklist shown below outlines the steps necessary to fully understand the large volume of information you now have regarding your development and how to use the information to create a comprehensive development plan. Before you begin to build your development plan, you should carefully read the next section outlining the Hogan Development Model. The model provides an excellent overview of the steps involved in creating a development plan.

This report follows the sequence of steps listed below beginning with the section following the Hogan Development Model.

General Model

One of the most difficult challenges associated with development is sifting through performance data and targeting areas for change. The Hogan Development Model is a simple way of meeting this challenge. The model has three components: Behavioral Attributes, Competency Domains, and Job Performance. Behavioral Attributes describe "why we do what we do." Competency Domains describe "what we do and how we do it." Job Performance represents the requirements necessary to be successful in a job. If you have development information on your Behavioral Attributes and Competency Domains, you can relate that information to job requirements. Accurately targeting development is a matter of choosing those areas that you can reasonably expect to change and, if you make the change, it will produce a noticeable performance improvement. The best targets are those that will produce the most improvement with the least amount of effort to change.

Job Performance

An appropriate development target should have a significant impact on job performance. If you understand the requirements of the job that impact successful performance, then targeting development is a matter of lining up the three components of the model. You should think about job requirements in terms of the Competency Domains. In other words, consider the competencies responsible for successful performance and group them according to the four domains. The domains will then serve as an organizing structure for all development planning activities. Your manager is probably the best source of information regarding those competencies most responsible for successful performance.

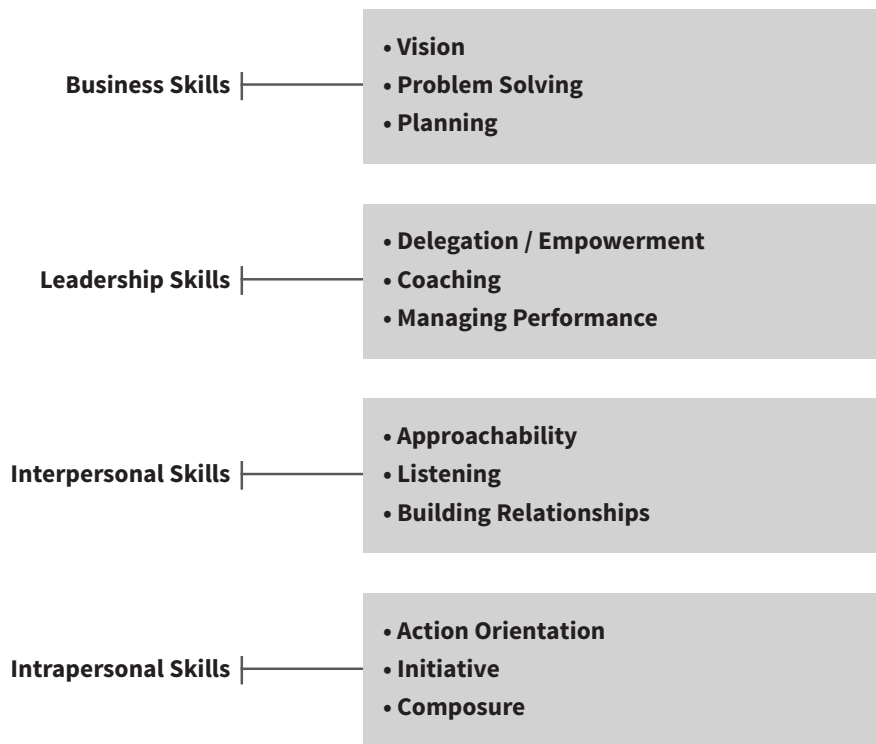

Competency Domains

Competency Domains are clusters of competencies that tend to go together. They are best measured using on-the-job behavioral examples obtained through feedback. This can be done systematically using a 360 rating process or by simply asking for feedback from those individuals that know your work best. Four domains capture most of the competencies that commonly occur in business. Business Skills include competencies that can be done on your own and usually are thoughtful in nature. Leadership Skills include competencies used in managing others. Interpersonal Skills encompass competencies used in getting along with others. Finally, Intrapersonal Skills refer to competencies considered to be at the core of how one approaches any work assignment.

The Competency Domains have an important developmental relationship to each other. Intrapersonal Skills develop early in life followed by Interpersonal, Leadership, and Business Skills. The earlier in life a skill is developed, the more difficult it is to change. For example, planning skills (Business Skills Domain) are much easier to develop than initiative (Intrapersonal Skills Domain). This distinction should be considered when choosing development targets.

WHAT WE DO AND HOW WE DO IT, MEASURED USING JOB-RELATED FEEDBACK

Behavioral Attributes

Behavioral Attributes are best measured by assessment inventories that are capable of looking beyond a small sample of behaviors to provide a description of "why" those behaviors occur in the first place. Behavioral Attributes are comprised of personality characteristics, cognitive abilities, and motivational characteristics. The Leadership Forecast Potential Report and Challenge Report both provide excellent measures of personality characteristics. A measure of critical thinking such as the Watson-Glaser Critical Thinking Inventory is a good measure of cognitive abilities. Motivational characteristics speak to our wants and desires and are often manifested in our values. The Leadership Forecast Values Report provides a good understanding of motivational characteristics. Understanding your personality characteristics, cognitive ability, and motivational characteristics is the foundation for development. Knowing "why you do what you do" often dictates the targets you are likely to be successful in changing. It may also dictate the change strategy with the highest probability of success.

WHY WE DO WHAT WE DO, MEASURED USING ASSESSMENT INVENTORIES

Applying the Model

You now have a better understanding of the three components of the model. The next step is to apply these components to create a high impact development plan. The following example uses a sales job to illustrate how the model works.

Sales jobs have many critical requirements including planning (Business Skills), listening (Interpersonal Skills), and initiative (Intrapersonal Skills). In analyzing the sales job, you find that initiative is the most important competency followed by listening, then planning. In reviewing Competency Domain data (from your 360 ratings), you were rated high in initiative, but low in listening and planning.

Turning to data on your Behavioral Attributes, you were somewhat low on personality characteristics associated with listening and planning. Since you have Competency Domain and Behavioral Attribute data that indicate weaknesses in listening and planning, which one should be the primary target for development? You have to use some judgment at this point. Since listening was rated as more important to success than planning, it would be reasonable to target listening. However, it is important to realize that your listening skills develop long before your planning skills and will be a more challenging development target. You essentially have to balance the development challenge with the potential impact on successful job performance. In this case, it would be reasonable to conclude that, as a sales person, listening skills take priority over planning skills.

The following pages will help you apply this model in building a development plan for your target job.

Step I – Analyze Your Job

The starting point in building your development plan is to identify the key requirements of your job that are responsible for successful performance. Spend a few minutes thinking about the truly important requirements for success. You may want to ask your manager just to make sure you fully understand the requirements that will lead to success. In the space below, write down the competencies that are critical to success, grouping them according to the Competency Domains. Once you have listed them, describe in your own words what you think is the most important job requirement for each domain.

Domains	Competencies	Describe the most important requirement
BUSINESS	<hr/> <hr/> <hr/> <hr/>
LEADERSHIP	<hr/> <hr/> <hr/> <hr/>
INTERPERSONAL	<hr/> <hr/> <hr/> <hr/>
INTRAPERSONAL	<hr/> <hr/> <hr/> <hr/>

Step 2 – Review Multi-rater Data

Multi-rater data can be very important to understanding "what" you do and "how" you do it on the job. If you have multi-rater data such as a 360 assessment, you can use this section to summarize the results. If you do not have 360 data, but have feedback from your manager or others in your organization regarding your job performance, you may want to use this section to summarize that information. Skip this section if you do not have any feedback regarding your job performance.

Review your multi-rater data and think about what the results reveal about your strengths and opportunities for development in each of the competency domains. Note your strengths and opportunities in the space provided and write down the specific multi-rater item (or statement) that was most important in leading you to your conclusions.

Domains	Strengths / Opportunities	Multi-rater Items
BUSINESS	Strengths: Opportunity:	_____ _____ _____ _____
LEADERSHIP	Strengths: Opportunity:	_____ _____ _____ _____
INTERPERSONAL	Strengths: Opportunity:	_____ _____ _____ _____
INTRAPERSONAL	Strengths: Opportunity:	_____ _____ _____ _____

Step 3 – Review Forecast Summary

This section summarizes your results from the Leadership Forecast Potential Report, Values Report, and Challenge Report. The summary will prepare you to do a more detailed review of the individual Leadership Forecast Reports. This section is organized in four parts: (1) Performance Strengths; (2) Values and Drivers; (3) Challenges; and (4) a Career Development Summary. At the end of this section, there is a table containing your individual scale scores for each of the Leadership Forecast Reports.

Performance Strengths

Personal Impact

You are active, hardworking, competitive, and eager to get ahead. You like leadership positions and enjoy being in charge. You are willing to take initiative in a group and, with the appropriate interpersonal skills, you will be able to assume leadership roles on team projects. These tendencies are particularly important in jobs that require directing others, persuasiveness, and working without supervision. Others will see you as energetic, talkative, and socially active. You should meet the public well and create a strong, even vivid, impression on others. You seem well suited for work that involves interacting with strangers. You should perform well in front of groups and like public speaking. This is particularly important for jobs in which one must constantly deal with strangers in a positive way, for example, in sales, training, marketing, and customer service work.

Interpersonal Skill

You are unusually diplomatic, friendly, charming, and sensitive to the needs and feelings of others. You will be able to build and maintain friendships. You are concerned about staff morale and being a good team player. You value encouraging, protecting, and helping others. These characteristics facilitate performance in jobs that require care giving, customer service, and developing long-term relationships. You are typically planful, self-controlled, careful, conscientious, and good with details. You will be a hardworking and solid organizational citizen (i.e., reliable and dependable). You are concerned about rules, procedures, and task clarity, and will expect projects and assignments to be done well and on time. You value providing high quality work products and meeting high performance standards. This is particularly important in jobs requiring accuracy, precision, and attention to detail.

Working and Learning Style

You are stable and poised, have a positive attitude, and are usually in a good mood. You can easily handle job pressure and/or heavy work loads, and will rarely be irritable. Coworkers and team members will appreciate your steadiness; this is particularly important for jobs or tasks where there is a great deal of urgency, stress, and/or potential risk, and where it is necessary to keep emotions under control. In times of stress, your coworkers can count on you to be calm, consistent, and upbeat. You are open-minded, curious, and imaginative. You understand the big picture, think quickly on your feet, have ideas for solving problems, and are comfortable with unstructured work that entails design, invention, or change. You are receptive to new ideas and value finding better ways of doing things. This is particularly important in jobs that require creativity, problem solving, strategic planning, and leadership. You are bright, knowledgeable, and up-to-date concerning current issues and technology. You also seem self-disciplined, achievement-oriented, and productive, and should enjoy pursuing tasks to completion. You will value training for yourself and others, will seek opportunities to grow and develop, and will want to apply the latest relevant knowledge to the work setting. These characteristics are important for most jobs.

Values and Drivers

Achievement Motivation

Although you are serious about work, you also enjoy entertaining others, like variety in your life, and know how to have a good time. You do not seem interested in competition or challenges for their own sake and prefer to let your career unfold naturally—whatever happens is what happens. You do not need to dramatize your achievements, but you appreciate positive feedback and enjoy a "pat on the back" from time to time.

Social Interests

You seem equally happy working by yourself or as part of a team. You enjoy meeting new people, but you also like having time to yourself. You like people, but you do not need constant interaction. You focus on your work and take a practical, matter-of-fact interest in the needs and complaints of staff. You prefer to make staff decisions based on rational business considerations rather than people's wishes and fantasies, and, as a result, you want meetings to start on time and follow sensible agendas. You enjoy change, variety, innovation, and diversity, and you dislike tradition, custom, formality, and uniformity. You seem willing to experiment and challenge convention in the name of possible progress.

Entrepreneurial Values

You seem to have a sensible attitude toward money; although you appreciate its value, you are not preoccupied by compensation issues. You judge yourself in part by income potential, but you also take pride in family, friends, and leisure time activities. You prefer to minimize risk and uncertainty; you like expectations to be spelled out and performance standards to be made explicit. You would rather be safe than sorry, which means that you will take few foolish chances, but you may also be reluctant to take the chances necessary to advance your career.

Decision Making Style

You care a good deal about appearance and make decisions based on style, taste, and image, even sometimes at the expense of functionality. You are an advocate for quality, and you value living and working in attractive surroundings. You seem willing to make decisions based on data and research as well as your own personal experience. You are comfortable with technology, but you are not interested in technological innovations for their own sake—you understand the use of technology without being addicted to it.

Challenges

Reactions to Others

You seem calm and not easily frustrated; others may also find that your enthusiasm for new projects and people can be guarded at times. You seem to be quite insightful about others' motives and intentions, but somewhat thin-skinned and easily offended. Under pressure, others may see you as mistrustful, uncooperative, or argumentative. Although you are confident and willing to accept challenges, you might threaten colleagues who are more risk averse. You are a sturdy person who can stand up to criticism and adversity. Nonetheless, because you can be reserved, others may think you are aloof, detached, and unconcerned about their interests. Unless you tell them, others will rarely know when you think something is wrong or could be done better. Nonetheless, you have doubts about others' competency, dislike being pushed, and when you are annoyed, you may procrastinate and seem stubborn and hard to coach.

Personal Performance Expectations

You seem unusually self-confident, ambitious, energetic, and aggressive, and you expect to succeed at everything you undertake. When they get to know you, others may also see you as demanding, self-centered, and unable to acknowledge your mistakes and shortcomings or willingness to work as part of a team. You seem charming, interesting, fun, risk-taking, and willing to think and act quickly. In time, however, people may find you hard to work with because you can change directions so quickly, seem not to follow through on some commitments, ignore your mistakes, and expect that others will not notice your mistakes. You seem persuasive, energetic, and entertaining, and you expect that people will find you interesting and attractive. Although people do enjoy your company, over time they may also find you to be disorganized, distractible, and not always delivering as promised. You seem smart, creative, and somewhat unorthodox in your thinking. Others will notice that your ideas seem unconventional, unusual, and unpredictable. These tendencies are important for problem solving, but over time, others may find some of your ideas impractical, unrealistic, or unworkable.

Reactions to Authority

You seem somewhat tolerant and flexible, but may be inconsistent in your standards for evaluating others' work, sometimes being too strict and other times too lenient. You seem independent and self-reliant, and may become tired quickly when working as part of a team.

Career Development

When Strengths Become Weaknesses—Development feedback for Candidate Sample

In view of your unusual resilience and ability to handle pressure, remember your previous errors and mistakes in order to learn from them, and make sure you are aware that others may be stressed when you are not. You are keenly interested in career advancement. Work to stay alert and look for opportunities to make these interests known. You need to remember not to intimidate inexperienced or more junior team members, to practice letting others be in charge, and to be patient with others who are less motivated to succeed. You are so extraverted and enthusiastic that you may need to remember to listen carefully to what others are saying and not interrupt them—especially when dealing with inexperienced or more junior colleagues and with clients. You should also make a point to share credit with others for successes achieved. Because you value getting along with others, you will tend to avoid taking unpopular positions. Remember to be careful not to promise more than you can deliver, to confront problems promptly before they become unmanageable, and to let others know where you stand on specific topics. You are so conscientious, you should remember that you will not be able to do everything yourself and that it will not be possible to do every job equally well. Learn how to delegate and prioritize work, and make sure you understand the need to be flexible when it is called for—for example, you should allow people to interrupt you when necessary. Although you are imaginative and visionary, you may become easily bored with routine tasks; remember to stay with tasks until they are finished. You value being well-informed and will proactively seek training opportunities. Realize that you may become frustrated when they are not available. Moreover, you will enjoy setting your own performance goals because you are very achievement oriented.

Dealing with Derailment Tendencies

- First, you probably use displays of emotion as a way of making a point. There are better ways to make a point and repeated emotional outbursts may annoy others.
- Second, you should practice active listening and be careful not to interrupt. When others have finished speaking, paraphrasing what they have said can be used as a way of showing active listening. This will enhance credibility and show respect for the opinion of others.
- Third, you should not confuse activity with productivity, and you should try hard not to waste people's time with unnecessary meetings.
- Fourth, remember your strengths—at your best, you are an interesting and entertaining person who can do several things at once, and who can galvanize others to action with ideas and the ability to sell them.

Step 4 – Review Each Forecast Report

The Leadership Forecast Reports are designed to help you understand "why" you do what you do. There are three reports in the series including the Potential, Challenge, and Values Reports. Use this section to record strengths and opportunities as identified in the Leadership Forecast Reports.

In the previous step, you reviewed a summary of the three Leadership Forecast Reports. You are now ready to complete an in-depth review of the individual reports. We suggest you read all three reports before completing this section. Once you have read the reports, you should go back, and beginning with the Potential Report, review and record strengths and opportunities for development in each of the competency domains. Do the same for the Challenge and Values Reports. Keep in mind that it is not necessary to list something in every box. Only record the strengths and opportunities that are pertinent to your job success.

Domains	Potential Report	Challenge Report	Values Report
BUSINESS	Strengths: Opportunity:	Strengths: Opportunity:	Strengths: Opportunity:
LEADERSHIP	Strengths: Opportunity:	Strengths: Opportunity:	Strengths: Opportunity:
INTERPERSONAL	Strengths: Opportunity:	Strengths: Opportunity:	Strengths: Opportunity:
INTRAPERSONAL	Strengths: Opportunity:	Strengths: Opportunity:	Strengths: Opportunity:

Step 5 – Complete Data Integration

You have now completed an analysis of your job, reviewed your 360 results, and reviewed your assessment results. You have all the data you need to identify some high impact development targets. First, use your overall impression of the data to identify any behaviors that you believe need to change to improve your job performance. Record those behaviors in the right-hand column under the appropriate domain. It is not necessary to list something in every box. Record only those behaviors that indicate a clear need for attention. Second, in the middle column record the actual 360 items (or statements) that suggested a need for improvement. Finally, in the left-hand column record the Leadership Forecast Report results that help you understand "why" you exhibit these behaviors. Keep in mind, the best development targets are those that will significantly improve your job performance, you have clear data supporting the need for change, and you have acquired some insight as to "why" you exhibit the behavior.

Domains	Using the assessment data from Step 4, describe the results that indicate why you do what you do.	Using the 360 data (or statements) from Step 2, list items that led you to select behaviors needing improvement.	Describe behaviors that need to change in order to improve your performance.

Building Your Development Plan

There are many options for creating a development plan. Two options you should consider are outlined below.

Your company's approach

Most companies offer some form of a development planning form that can be used to document and track your personal development. In-house approaches vary widely, but usually include a place to specify development goals, action plans, and a way to document progress. The advantage of using an in-house approach is that it is consistent with what other people are doing in the organization and likely has some structure which conforms to an in-house development process.

If an in-house approach is not available or if you are looking for an alternative, the following approach should be considered.

Development Planning Form

For those interested in a simple paper-and-pencil approach that does not require a large time investment to create, we have provided a planning form that is located in Appendix A. Based on the information you recorded in Section 5, you should identify one or two development goals and record them in the first column of the form. A good development goal is one that is stated in behavioral terms and can be measured over time to ensure progress. Development action items can be listed in the second column and progress toward achieving the goal can be recorded in the subsequent columns over time. If you need suggestions for development actions, the Internet provides a rich source of information. An inverted pyramid approach is recommended to complete a successful Internet search. Begin with a specific development question, perhaps even the goal you have selected. Work backward using less specific search questions until you locate information that you find useful. This approach often reduces search time on the Internet and improves the probability of finding information directly related to your development goal.
